

dollar winner, incidentally. I tried it, but there is a machine. And my guess would be the machines would probably pay for themselves in about 90 days if we got a good, honest count. That is all I want to add. I'll give you the rest of my time, Loran.

SENATOR SCHMIT: Well, thank you, Senator Korshoj. I agree with you. The equipment is not going to be cheap. But I would take the equipment one step further. And I can just slightly enjoy some of the discomfort that some of my colleagues are going through because they recognize that unless you account for the money that goes in, and the money that goes out, you haven't really done a thing. And my good friend, Senator Morehead, who has struggled with this problem for a month, recognizes the authenticity of what I'm saying. But if we were to propose that any other operation operate on a cash basis, lay down the cash over here, no accounting for the total number of pickles sold, no accounting of the total money paid out, no record, no record, you would have...you would stand up and say you've got to be crazy, you've got to be playing with a short deck, and that's exactly what you've been doing. Now, ladies and gentlemen, you've got to sweat a little bit on this one because you've got to know old Schmit is right. And you put me out of business and that is no hard feelings, I understand that and I accepted it. But the facts are that you have come before this body and have said we're going to regulate the industry. Well, ladies and gentlemen, if you can regulate the industry with a pickle jar on one hand and no count, and a cash box on the other hand and no count, then we ought to disband the Department of Revenue and every April 15th just have 1,600,000 citizens march up here and say this is what I owe you, Governor, and this is what I owe you, Uncle Sam, and it's all in cash but you can trust me, (laughter) and you know how far you'd get? You wouldn't get to the first step from the Governor's office, she'd have the guy with the nets there and justifiably so. Now if you want a legitimate operation, you can do it this way. And I'm not afraid to let the nonprofits, such as Senator Hall has referred to, operate, because he has explained that amendment. The idea came to me from my own bartender who had...one of them who had a machine like you described, Senator Korshoj, but he said, it ought to go farther. It ought to record when there is money paid out because that is the only way I can tell if my bartender paid money out when I was gone. And if you do it this way, you have a record, the state has a record, the charity has a record. And no one has to worry about whether or not Schmit's Bar and
